Obituary.

George Francis Adams was born May 17, 1816, in Jefferson county, Virginia. He was the grandson of Alexander Hamilton. His parents emigrated west in 1833. He went back to Virginia in 1834, and returned to Missouri the same year. In 1835 he took part in the Black Hawk war and in 1836 enlisted under General Price and Colonel Watson to drive the Mormons from Missouri. He afterwards enlisted against the Mexicans to capture Santa Fe. He served in the Confederate army during the late rebellion under Gen. Price and also under Gen. VanDorn and McGruder.

Mr. Adams was a large land owner and accumulated a large fortune. He resided in Chariton county, Missouri, forty-two years and came to Colorado in 1878, and resided here up to his death. His wife died in 1863. Having a deep love for his children he brought them up under his own care and guidance. He leaves four sons and four daughters.

Mr. Adams lived in Christian faith, being a member of the Presbyterian church for 55 years. He was confined to his bed for six months prior to his death and bore his affliction with Christian patience. His funeral services were conducted by Rev. Sisson of the Methodist church at Castle Rock; the remains were interred in Castle Rock cemetery.
